Frank G. Creegan of the bank is being relieved during holidays by W. M. Currie of Lethbridge.

Mrs. David Young of Lethbridge was the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Burrell over the week-end. Mrs. Young's two young children are vacationing with their grand-parents.

The four young ladies from Coleman now holidaying at Coeur D'Alene wrote The Journal stating the "last three days are the hottest they've had, so I guess we came with it." Jimmy Evans happened to stroll into the same cafe as they were eating in. He was on a visit there. They state the holiday resort where they are staying is just as hot.

The rink committee have been doing much needed repairs to the arena the past two weeks. New boards have been placed around the outside of the arena giving it the appearance of having been newly built. If the good work would continue to the extent of roof repairs, both hockey and curling clubs would extend them a vote of thanks.

Annual Revision of Rates Results in Reducing Light Rate to Almost One-Half of Rate Prevailing Under Franchise Granted in 1924

Though confirmation has not been received, it is anticipated a reduction of 1c per kilowatt on domestic lighting and 20 per cent. on water rates will be given under the arrangement made last year whereby a yearly revision of rates is to be made. The hose rate of one dollar per month from May to September has not so far been charged in 1925.

Last year a reduction was made on light from 12c to 8c for the first 25 kilowatts and 7c over the first 25 k.w. Mayor Paterson's statement confirmation will be received later, following which the new rate will go into effect.

The council intimates that in view of the reduction, and no additional charge being made for the use of garden hoses, it is advisable for water consumers not to waste water by allowing it to run indiscriminately on lawns and gardens, as all water which is pumped from the river, when Nez Perce creek diminishes in supply, has to be paid for by the consumers.

Therefore to warrant a reduction in rates, economy must be observed in the use of water.

"SALADA"
ICED TEA*Short Life-Stories

Now and then the writer who is responsible for this column each week feels impelled, instead of writing an article himself, to pass on something he has read which may prove helpful and encouraging to others. This is one of those times when two or three short stories from real life seem to call for repeating.

There has been a lot of talk, the last few years, about how the worker is exploited under Capitalism. Not much has been said about the other side of the picture. Let us tell then of a man, a small manufacturer, who, when the crash came, employed twenty people. His business has shrunk during the depression, but the same twenty are still on his payroll. What is more, he is still paying them the same wages. He has done this by ruthlessly cutting of his own expense, and by dipping into his own capital. He has carried the people who work for him as a personal responsibility. He doesn't like to talk about it. When questioned, he merely shrugs his shoulders and insists that he has done nothing extraordinary. "It's like horses," he says. "When you come in after a hard ride, I see that your mount is fed and watered, don't you? I can't do less for the people who work for me. I can't sleep when I know they aren't sleeping well. That's all there is to it." Such men do more toward making this a better world than a thousand laws, enforced by a million policemen. The Golden Rule is the one code that seems to work.

Real life beats anything the fiction writer can invent. Take the case of another man who used to be branch manager for a big concern. He had an impressive suite of offices, and a number of people working under him. He belonged to the best clubs, drove a big car, and lived well. As the years passed, he grew to take his position for granted. He began to pay more attention to outside interests and less to his job. Times grew hard, but he still took things easily. The home office was troubled. Hints, increasingly broad, seemed to have no effect on him. Finally it was decided that he must be discharged. But the boss, remembering his long years of service, intervened, and, in compromise, he was recalled to the home office. There he was given a desk among the city salesmen. It must have been a hard dose for him to swallow, but if he felt humiliated, he did not show it. He never referred to his former grandeur as a branch manager. Always smiling, he was down earlier than any of the cubs; and stayed later. He took what leads were given to him—most of them considered too hopeless for a good man to bother with—and did his best. It was soon forgotten that he had been demoted. He was accepted as just another salesman. No one paid much attention to him. The younger men rather smiled at the zeal of "old" Blank, as they called him. When not on the street, he was always telephoning somebody, busily thumbing over his prospect file. In the front office, however, a strange thing was noted: Blank's sales began to climb. Customers—big ones—appeared out of the blue, insisting that they must deal with Mr. Blank. The other day, Blank was made General Sales Manager.

It is doubtful if there is any better cure for the weariness of spirit which comes from endless discussion of economics or disputation over such things as politics, than a hour or two with a microscope. For a trifling sum of money, one gains admission to a world full of new and fascinating things. In a single drop of water, scooped from the nearest ditch, there is literally endless entertainment. After a time in this world, with its breathless dramas and life-and-death struggles between incredible creatures, the real world seems curiously remote and unreal. One returns to it refreshed, and with a sorer point of view. There is the man whose whole life collapsed in disaster. He saw nothing ahead, and as he stood one night in the bow of the ship which was taking him back to the wreckage of his career, he resolved to throw himself into the dark waves. But he happened to glance up to the great arch of the skies, filled with timeless stars; and suddenly his own life, happy or otherwise, seemed oddly unimportant. He returned to his problems, solved many of them, built a new and successful career upon the ruins of the failure—and, incidentally, became famous as an astronomer.

This is the time of year when young men, just out of school and college, are trying to plan their futures. Many write to friends, asking advice. The advice given by one such friend to a young man was as follows: All I can answer is that if I were just starting out to hunt a career, I'd look for it as far away from the big cities as I possibly could. There is more glamour in city life—perhaps more of what is called "success". The money-making possibilities are greater. But from what I have been able to observe in my journey through this vale of tears, the small-town man gets the most fun out of life. He may earn less in dollars, than his city cousin does; but his living costs less, and he has more time in which to enjoy the dollars he has. If I had my life to live over, I think I'd start out by heading for a small community, and dig in there. Every now and then I'd visit a big city just to remind myself how smart I'd been to become a small-town fellow.

An astonishing hat trick was per-

When he reached Birkenhead Station the wind lifted his new hat from his head and sent it sailing over the tops of the houses and out of sight. On reaching home he was amazed to find his new hat on the kitchen table. It had dropped in his backyard.

To Promote Highway Safety*Ontario To Cope With Rising Tide Of Automobile Accidents

To cope with the rising tide of deaths from automobile accidents in Ontario, Hon. T. B. McQueen, minister of highways and acting attorney-general, announced 12 constables had been added to the provincial police force, most of them detailed to the highway patrol.

Provision for additional traffic police marked the latest step in Mr. McQueen's campaign to promote highway safety. Possession of a driver's license has been made the basis for enforcing the traffic laws, said the minister, and he listed two other features of his safety campaign—police inspection of motor vehicles and equipment and an advertising campaign.

Departmental records showed 202 persons had been killed in automobile accidents during the first six months of this year, compared with 184 in the corresponding period of 1934. The June death toll was 44, an increase of 12 above the May total. "A small fine does not quite meet the situation," said Mr. McQueen. "We will get more attention to the law if we exercise freely the cancellation of the driver's license for a term."

A giant "flying battle cruiser," claimed the fastest and longest range bombing plane ever built, will be tested soon by the United States army air corps at Wright Field, Dayton, Ohio.

Specifications demanded by the air corps included: A speed of 200 to 250 miles an hour at 10,000 feet altitude, an operating speed of from 170 to 220 miles an hour at the same altitude; endurance at operating speed of from 6 to 10 hours, and a service ceiling of from 20,000 to 25,000 feet.

The aerial battle cruiser has a wing span of approximately 100 feet, length of 70 feet, height of 15 feet, and gross weight of about 15 tons.

Just a Coincidence*Science Of Deduction Came As A Shock To Bus Conductor

A remarkable experience befell Col. Foley when he was traveling along Oxford street in a bus and heard the conductor telling a passenger the name of the shops that originally stood on the site of a large store. Surmising that the man had probably delivered letters there Col. Foley asked him: "How long ago were you a postman?"

"How did you know I was a postman?" the conductor retorted.

"Quite simple, my dear Watson," said the colonel.

The man who had evidently not read his "Sherlock Holmes," nearly fell off the bus. His name actually was Watson.

An Amusing Incident*Guide In Westminster Hall Embarrassed By Touring Party

Presenting a loyal address of parliament to the King in Westminster Hall during recent jubilee celebrations has recalled an amusing incident in the same historic chamber when a party of Scottish fishermen were touring London.

The guide from the north were led taking through the building by a police officer who pointed to the plate indicating where Sir William Wallace, national hero of Scotland, was in 1306 tried and condemned to death for treason against the English to whom he declared he owed no allegiance.

Immediately the Scottish women, with much power and expression, broke out in the well-known ballad "Scots Wha Hae Wi' Wallace Bleid." This was a most impudent proceeding, of course, and the women's escort was in a dilemma. His sympathies were with the women but his duty dictated either the suppression of the singing or the expulsion of the singers.

Without saying a word, the escort walked quietly away to look up a superior officer for instructions how to act in the matter. After some searching he found his officer and returned to the spot. As he had expected and wished, the singing was over and the ringers gone, leaving no trace. The officer did not repeat the incident, the account of which has leaked out since the jubilee cele-

One of the most interesting finds of the season, in Saskatchewan, is that of Professor Vigfuson, at old Pimikus crossing, near Rocanville, the remains of two Indians in shallow graves. These have been carefully lifted and sent to the history museum at the University of Saskatchewan.

One of the graves yielded only a few bones, some charred birch bark, and a few charred sticks. The other contained a complete skeleton of some Indian brave, in excellent state of preservation.

The body had been placed on its left side, facing west, and was just two feet below the surface of the ground. Thousands of colored beads of different shapes and sizes were found about the remains, also a large piece of flint and the rusted remains of what had been a hunting knife. There were also the bones of two small animals, possibly a squirrel and a mink, placed beside the body, as provisions on the long journey to the happy hunting grounds.

Keep Method Secret*Chinese Have Mysterious Way Of Holding An Autopsy

An ancient Chinese method of autopsy, known only to a closed group of practitioners, whose knowledge is handed down by word of mouth from generation to generation, has resulted in the release of the two sons of Chai Tehsuan, who died 18 months ago.

On the basis of these findings of the method, known as "steam bones," the two sons have been freed of the suspicion of having murdered their father.

The body was exhumed and two "steam bones" experts attached to the Examination Department of the District Court were asked to perform an autopsy.

With the aid of yellow Chinese wine, some millet, a dash of vinegar, Chinese herbs and an umbrella, the experts were ready to announce the result of their investigation:

"Mr. Chiao met his death from hanging, but it is clear that he hanged himself, and was not hanged by his sons or by any other person."

For Prison Reform*Borstal System Is Recommended For Canada

After studying in detail application and operation of the Borstal system in six English prisons, General D. M. Ormond, superintendent of Canadian penitentiaries, has reported to the Dominion government his opinion that similar training and treatment of youthful offenders can and ought to be put into effect in Canada.

Hon. Hugh Guthrie, minister of justice, tabled General Ormond's report in the House of Commons and decided the system may be made effective in Canada within 60 days. No legislation or extra money vote would be necessary but there would be some staff additions and extra buildings needed.

The Borstal system, forecast for Canada in the speech from the throne at parliament's opening in January, is a combination of mental, moral, physical and industrial training for a strenuous kind, for convicts under the age of 21 years.

Selected penitentiary inmates under the age of 21 would be housed separately and made the subject of this training with a view to correcting criminal instincts and preparing the youth for more useful effort on discharge.

Action Is Taken By Ottawa To Deal With Strikers

Ottawa.—The mayor, board of control, police commission and law officers of the city of Ottawa, met with county and Royal Canadian Mounted Police representatives to consider preparations in event any great body of unemployed marchers or relief camp strikers succeed in reaching the capital.

At the conference it was emphasized that prevention of movement from province to province of the strikers and "On-to-Ottawa" marchers was a Dominion responsibility. Movement between points in Ontario and Quebec were provincial responsibilities.

Ottawa would call on the federal government for militia, "not as a show of force, but to protect citizens and property." In event any great number of marchers came to the capital, the city fathers decided.

There would be no citizens' volunteer corps to cope with marchers, only men in uniform. The city police might be augmented, but they would be men of the reserve list and not civilians who, being armed and not used to discipline, might not be as amenable to orders as men used to command.

That Ottawa was not prepared to care for thousands living in upon the capital was emphasized.

There should be small delegations elected to come to Ottawa and present their grievances, Ottawa authorities felt.

Tariff Reduction Will Be Advocated By New Stevens Party

Toronto.—Drastic reductions in such tariffs that affect British exporters will be advocated by the new Stevens party as one of its main planks, Hon. H. H. Stevens, former minister of trade and commerce, announced on his arrival here.

Mr. Stevens said his proposed tariff reduction policy would apply especially to those imports which are necessary and advantageous to Canadian farmers.

His party would take no stand either way, on the question of repeal or amendment of section 88 of the criminal code, he said.

The leader of Canada's fourth party said his decision to advocate certain tariff reductions had been reached following his investigations with the mass buying and price spreads commission.

Immediately upon his arrival, Mr. Stevens went into conference with doing badly."

Rioting In Ulster

Three Dead As Result Of Shooting Following Celebration

Belfast, Northern Ireland.—Rioting and shooting following Ulster's celebration of the 44th anniversary of the battle of the Boyne, caused three deaths.

All the victims died by bullets. They were Mrs. Margaret Rodgers, 29, Edward Withers, and an unidentified boy about 18. Police numbered the wounded at 49.

The daytime ceremonies were gay but peaceful. The outbreak began after sundown and continued far into the night. Police were kept busy throughout the night making arrests, dragging the alleged riot instigators from their beds.

Shooting began again in the streets of Belfast after police, following an hour's stiff battle with rioters in which gunfire cracked and stones were thrown, gained control of the situation.

The riot began with stoning of a Scottish band which participated in the demonstration.

A record number of Orangemen in full regalia, their loyalist districts ablaze with bunting, participated in commemorating of the historic battle for Protestantism.

Mrs. Margaret Rodgers, 29, was shot in the abdomen and died quickly. Mrs. Mary Lang, also shot in the abdomen, was reported in critical condition. Fourteen other persons were wounded in the exchange of shots between police and rioters, while five were treated for head wounds inflicted by flying rocks.

The police, who fired time after time into the crowd along York street, an extension of Royal avenue, Belfast's main thoroughfare, managed to restore order after an hour of stiff rioting.

A number of resolutions passed by the Orangemen included pleas that Protestants resist propaganda against their faith and criticism of attempts to stir up religious troubles.

Would Accept Challenge

Englishman Would Satisfy Italian Who Wanted To Fight Duel

Rome.—Declaring "If Englishmen aren't cowards," a letter signed by Edward A. Dickinson, Highbury Grange, London, was received here challenging Captain G. A. Fanelli to a duel.

The letter writer offered to substitute for Major Clement Richard Attlee, deputy leader of the opposition in the British commons, who declined to accept Fanelli's challenge on the ground that duels are "obsolete and barbarous."

"All Englishmen aren't cowards. I trust you will allow me to take up the challenge . . . Trusting this meets with your approval and thus allows an Englishman jealous of his country's history and tradition the opportunity to prove his sincerity, I am etc."

Captain Fanelli is at present away from Rome, but his friends say they understand he is unlikely to accept the challenge as his quarrel is with Attlee.

Negotiate For Air Pact

Britain May Conclude A Separate Agreement With Germany

London.—Great Britain may conclude a separate air agreement with Germany if efforts for a five-power air pact fail, Anthony Eden, minister for League of Nations affairs, indicated before the House of Commons.

"It is the hope and intention of His Majesty's government that an agreement on all armaments shall be concluded among the five Locarno powers," he said.

A Labor member asked, "Can Mr. Eden give assurance there is no intention of concluding a bilateral air pact with Germany alone as they have done on naval armaments?" Mr. Eden said, "That is a different question."

To Reconstruct Moscow

Ten-Year Plan For Converting It Into Modern Capital

Moscow.—A 10-year plan for the reconstruction of Moscow, converting it into an ultra-modern capital for 5,000,000 inhabitants, was announced by Joseph Stalin, dictator of Soviet Russia.

The new city will cover more than double the area of the present one, which has a population of 3,500,000. It will be surrounded by a six-mile zone of forests and parks to assure the populous clean air and furnish places for outings.

The site of the famous Red Square will be doubled, broad new avenues laid out, huge new hotels erected and 135,000,000 feet of new housing space provided if the goal of the plan is achieved.

Peace River Floods

Continuous Heavy Rains Cause Serious Damage

Edmonton.—Continuing heavy rains in the Peace River district had brought flood waters near their peak of last week when serious damage was done. Traffic to the British Columbia Peace River block has been halted by washed out bridges and interrupted ferry service. Train service is at a standstill and plans for aerial delivery of mail are being made.

Latest flood is reported from Robb, in the Edson, Alberta, district, where the Embarras river is on the rampage.

Farm Labor Shortage

Acute Situation Said To Exist In Rural Ontario

Ottawa.—An acute shortage of farm labor is being experienced in rural Ontario, according to government employment offices. The demand for experienced farm help exceeds the supply and many branches of the employment service of Canada in Ontario have long lists of job on file.

Besides the employment service of Canada the immigration and colonization department operates a placement bureau and reports the same condition.

BLASTING THE LEDGE AT NIAGARA FALLS

An interesting photograph of the terrific dynamite blast which sliced 11,000 tons of rock from the historic Honeymoon Point at Niagara Falls and sent it tumbling into the Great Gorge 200 feet below. The ledge dynamited had been undermined by erosion and was considered a hazard to sightseers who crowded the edge to view the falls.

Strikers From Federal Relief Projects Active In Three Provinces

Alberta Elections

Flood Projects May Delay Preparation Of Voters' List

Edmonton.—Alberta's general election date will not be announced until there is definite assurance that the northern flood situation has improved to the extent that preliminary work in preparing the voters' list can be completed within the required time, Premier Reid stated.

Hon. Hugh A. Allen, minister of lands and mines, who went north to obtain definite information for the government concerning flood conditions, is now marooned on a passenger train between Widewater and Lesser Slave Lake.

At least five cabinet ministers have signified their intention to again seek office. They include Premier R. G. Reid, Hon. J. R. Lowe, Hon. J. F. Lymburn, Hon. J. J. McLellan and Hon. H. W. Allen. Hon. Irene Parlby, minister without portfolio, will not stand for re-election. Others have not yet been nominated.

Liberals head the list with 55 federal candidates. Next are Conservatives with 37. The U.P.A. government party has 32 selected with many nominating conventions to be held, and the Labor party has selected eight. There is one independent. Social Credit forces, led by William Atherton, of Calgary, declare they will contest all constituencies.

Calgary Stampede

United States Cowboys Have Winning Streak

Calgary.—United States cowboys came to the front at the Calgary stampede, winning the North American bucking horse riding and the North American calf roping contests. "Buck" Buchanan of Boise, Idaho, took first prize in the bronc riding while second money went to "Hub" Whitteman of Fort Worth, Texas. Calf roping honors fell to Irby Mundy of Utleyville, Colo., who had his animal roped and tied in 18.2 seconds. Ike Rude of Magnolia, Okla., was second with a 20.1-second performance.

Foresse Stabilization

Possibility Predicted By Governor

Or Bank Of France

Paris.—Jean Tannery, governor of the Bank of France, predicted "America, France and England soon will unite for stabilization."

Speaking at the American club luncheon, he said the United States will aid in the recent French financial crisis was "something for which France will be forever grateful."

Tannery said that help indicated friendly feelings of the two countries and encouraged his confidence as to the possibility of stabilization which, he said, "will mark the end of the depression."

Fewer On Relief

Toronto.—Families on relief in Toronto are decreasing approximately 500 a week, Welfare Commissioner A. W. Laver announced. For the week ended July 6, the number of families receiving full relief was 19,177 compared with 19,686 at the same time last year.

Expansion Of Trade Present Need Says Australian Premier

Ottawa.—Expansion of trade rather than restriction of production is the need of the present if any substantial recovery from the world depression is to come about, in the opinion of Prime Minister Joseph A. Lyons of Australia. With Senator R. B. Bennett on one side and former prime minister Sir Robert Borden on the other, Mr. Lyons addressed a luncheon meeting.

"I do not believe in restricting production of foodstuffs," said Mr. Lyons. "I believe the world can consume a lot more of the right kind of food than it now consumes. When Providence has given us an abundance of food it is wrong to cut across the ends of God and deprive people of food which are essential to health and happiness."

"We are not out of the woods yet," he said. "But we have set the stage to take the fullest and earliest advantage of any recovery that comes." Australians did not hope for an even balance of trade with Canada because of special circumstances, but as the years went on they would like to see their exports to and their imports from Canada coming closer together without any decrease either way."

Labor Convention

Ottawa.—The fifty-first annual convention of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada will begin in Halifax, Sept. 16, it was announced here by Tom Moore, president, and P. M. Draper, secretary-treasurer.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

"RECONSTRUCTIONISTS" is the name, it is reported, under which the Stevens followers will be known. "What's in a name?" is the question often asked. This name is too clumsy to ever become popular. A five-syllable word is too much of a mouthful at one gulp for most people. Many will get tongue-twisted in pronouncing it.

THE death of Colonel Alfred Dreyfus recalls a drama of real life enacted many years ago when men well on in years to-day were boys. Dreyfus was charged with selling military secrets of France, was tried by court-martial and being found guilty, despite his protestations of innocence, was banished to Devil's Island. Following a fight to prove his innocence, extending over ten years, he was pardoned and the conviction declared illegal. It was a case which stirred the entire world, and recalls the splendid battle which Dreyfus' friends waged in his behalf.

EDITOR Bartlett of the Blairmore Enterprise informs all and sundry that "Editor Halliwell was a visitor to the Girl Guides camp at Rock Lake, B.C." When the wife saw it, she said—"What about me—don't I count anywhere in the scheme of things?" Now that Editor Bartlett has a wife, we would imagine he would have realized that they believe in equal rights with the men, even to having their names in the paper.

THE little black dog with the short legs and long body was returned to its owner. Tiring of staying around town, he wandered over to East Coleman, where Helen Rypien took care of him till he was claimed by the owner. As he is the only one of the type it was easy to establish his identity.

"AIN'T NATURE GRAND!" Archie Beveridge is a keen gardener, and so attractive are the trees and bushes in his garden that even the birds build nests there. Right against his front porch there is a nest in a lilac bush with five young, hungry canaries, which will soon be flying. Birds soon find where they are afforded protection. Archie may have a bird sanctuary in a few years, if his feathered guests increase.

AN attractive Neon sign has been erected in Blairmore. Editor Bartlett fears for its safety, as with so many destructive boys who delight in throwing rocks at anything and everything, he remarks it is puzzling to know just what will happen. "If it stands six months without being damaged wilfully, we will present each of the advertisers, free of cost, a copy of that new story, 'A True History of Scotland,'" states The Enterprise editor.

A man may be sincere in his political views, but that is no guarantee he is right. Out of four or five political parties contending for support, who is to say which is right? In selecting men for positions of trust, their records as business administrators are bound to be considered, except by those who become intolerant or fanatical to the point where they would vote in support of a candidate regardless of his ability or record for efficient service. We may be wrong in our support of a political party, doubtless many will say—"So you are!"

Which brings to mind the recruit marching out of step on the parade ground, who being reprimanded, stoutly maintained he was the only one in step.

TO get down to personal affairs, mainly about ourselves, during the eight years we have piloted this family journal, we haven't put by any surplus for the rainy day or the time when we may have to hobble around on crutches. It has been a fairly steady battle to make both ends meet without the middle being starved. We have a number of people on our books who owe a little here and a little there, which totalled would possibly enable us to dash around in a 1935 model car or a less expensive flivver. Not that we are anxious about that, as first things come first, and necessities come before luxuries with us. But we do urge all, now that steadier employment is prevailing, to pay promptly, and thereby ease that continual ambition to give Coleman a newspaper worthy of the place.

Lethbridge Herald Publishes Anniversary Edition

THE Lethbridge Herald celebrated the city's anniversary by publishing a special edition requiring miles and miles of paper, and containing much of interest concerning the 50 years of southern Alberta's development. At times we become somewhat impatient with present-day conditions, and imagine we are not making the progress that we should, yet reviewing 50 years and the changes which have taken place impresses people with the fact comparatively rapid strides have been made in all-round development.

To The Herald praise is due. To marshal the material covering a long period of time, digging into musty records, securing photographs of old timers and old-time scenes, is a heavy task requiring infinite patience. The assembling of all this reflects creditably on the editorial staff of the special

Work for Coleman, believe in Coleman, support its local institutions. Only in this way can you improve your town.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Ferguson and Mr. and Mrs. T. Kinnell of Coalhurst, were the guests of friends here over the week-end.

Mae Bell, Isobel Atkinson, Irene James and Marjorie Halliwell are spending two weeks holiday at Couer D'Alene, Idaho, and Spokane, leaving on Sunday morning at 5 a.m. with Miss Bell as pilot. Miss Yuill went with them part of the way, as she will spend the remainder of school vacation in California.

Display signboards bearing the name of Coleman and brief details are to be erected at the eastern and western entrances to the town. Motorists from afar will now know the name of the place, and its fame will be spread as "The Premier Coal Mining Centre of the Crows Nest Pass."

"Chisellers" --No Good!

Price-chisellers do nobody any good; instead, they do a lot of harm. They lower wage standards, create mistrust and generally disorganize legitimate business. Every business has to contend with them. A product of good quality is entitled to a fair price. Some people who indulge in chiselling on others would holler good and plenty if some chiselled on them or attempted to cut down their income.

Above all--don't "chisel" on your local printing office. It gives a lot of publicity to every local effort, it boosts for the town, its workers have to earn a fair wage, which is spent among local merchants.

The Job-Hunting Graduate

By John Edwin Price

People today listen with their eyes. A good salesman has something to show. One salesman will go into a place of business and merely talk vaguely about his product. Another will lay down an attractive package and proceed to show the interesting and worthwhile features of its contents. Which has the better chance of making a sale?

A graduate seeking work is, first of all, a salesman. He must sell himself and his abilities.

First impressions last. Hence, he should see that the package is attractive. He must be sure that he is neatly groomed. Then he should have something definite to show. That is he should not say in substance, "I can do most anything." He should be able to state clearly his chief interests and his specific qualifications, especially emphasizing those which may gear in with the machinery of the organization with which he wishes to make connections.

With this in mind, he should make a list of employers with whom he would be willing to work whole-heartedly, placing most desirable ones first. By this is meant those offering most in immediate rewards. A job hunter should not cheat himself out of a worthwhile experience or something of great future worth to gain an immediate temporary advantage.

When once on the job, a graduate should remember that his selling is just beginning. During the first few months or years he is selling himself for the future, there or elsewhere. While he got in with certain qualifications, he will realize that these were "getting-in" qualifications—not "staying-on" ones. He will be so strict in self-discipline as to being on time and doing all he can to please that there won't be anything left—for the most exacting boss to be strict about.

He will realize that his employer is not running a charitable institution. He is an investor. If the life of an employer is to be interesting enough for him to continue at it he must make money from handling employees and the problems of business.

Hence, the graduate will see to it that he earns all the boss pays him and something for the boss else his employer's job is an unpaid one and he will quit—this particular employee at least. To this end, and for a greater purpose in the future, the graduate will invest time and money if need be, in improving his knowledge and technique on the job. He himself, for several years is his own best investment.

The Rotary magazine has for a few months been giving space to new jobs for new workers, conducted by Walter Pitkin. It is being brought out that business men are interested in youth. Youth is teachable, makes suggestions for improvements as suggested, and can be more easily geared into the modern machinery of a modern business organization built on the savings of others.

League Representation

Sir Robert Falconer Wants A Foreign Minister For Canada

Hopes that Canada would establish a separate "ministry of foreign affairs" was expressed by Sir Robert Falconer, president of the League of Nations Society, at Ottawa.

"As Great Britain has appointed a minister of League of Nations affairs, Canada also might surely participate more fully in its affairs. While the effects of Italian and Japanese policies may seem remote from Canadians, we cannot be sure that they would not involve us in serious consequences; therefore, we should at once take our part as a people fully in consideration of world affairs."

Experimental Bridge

A young man whose knowledge of cards was vague, was roped in to complete a bridge four.

He committed his first mistake by throwing away a king on a trick already taken by his opponent's ace. "Good heavens!" belowed the young man's partner, "a king doesn't beat an ace."

"I know," stammered the beginner, "but I thought I'd find out."

Must Be Some Runner

The London Sunday Times carried the story of Miss Violet Piercy, the woman marathon runner, who ran five and one-quarter miles from Highgate to the Monument, sprinted up its 311 steps and emerged at the top 46 minutes 1 second after she started. The ascent of the stairs took 2 minutes 56 seconds. "No other woman or man," she stated, "has attempted this."

The Trans-Canada Airway

Way Is Being Prepared For Coast To Coast Service

The trans-Canada airway will be a reality within a couple of years if the appropriation made for civil aviation in the supplementary estimates brought down in parliament is amplified by similar votes in the next two years. What is being done now, is to prepare the way physically.

The operation of the service and its cost and extent will be a matter of policy to be determined when everything is ready.

But the plan all contemplates an air service across the country handling mails and passengers. Depending upon the type of machine used and making allowance for landings, it should be possible to fly from Montreal to Vancouver in 15 hours or less.

The appropriations now made, however, are wholly for preparatory work — the construction of airfields, landing fields, night lighting, wireless facilities and other accessories of the service. It will also be necessary to carry on extensive investigations through trial flights, the investigation of atmospheric conditions and the best routes for flying.

The work is now well advanced with 49 landing places constructed while the new appropriation of almost $500,000 will enable it to be actively prosecuted this year. The engineers have the whole plan laid out and this year's appropriations will simply fit in with what has been done previously.

In another branch of civil aviation — the air service performed for the different departments by the Air Force — there is an increased vote of $305,000. This will allow the carrying on of extra preventive services for the Mounted Police aerial surveys and a variety of similar operations.

Similarly the military end of flying will have an impetus in the vote of $500,000 for maintenance and training. This contemplates a certain addition of the personnel of the Air Force, but the exact number is not yet determined.

Demonstrates New Plane

W.H. Land In Small Space And Uses Little Gasoline

Dean B. Hammond, 26, of Ypsilanti, Mich., has designed an airplane which he asserts will "land on a dime" and gets mileage on gasoline like a low-priced automobile.

Hammond demonstrated his new plane for United States government officials. Fifteen of the new Ham model Y ships have been ordered by the federal bureau of air commerce for use in the inspection service.

The model Y can alight in a space 100 feet long at a speed of approximately 35 miles an hour and takes off in less than 200 feet. Features which make this possible are a three-wheel landing gear and a pusher propeller.

Holstein Cattle

All Previous Records Are Broken For Registration Of Pure Breed Stock

All existing records for registration and transfer of pure bred Holstein cattle in Canada were broken, according to half-yearly figures released from the head office of the Holstein Friesian Association of Canada, Brantford. In all, 14,705 head changed hands, which represents a 99 per cent. increase over 1934. Exports to the United States totalled 4,536 head and were 180 per cent. higher than the same period last year.

Registration for the period totalled 16,531 and showed a 23 per cent. improvement, despite heavy exportation of breeding stock.

Railroads Of Canada

History Of Railroads In Dominion Is Of Absorbing Interest

After a century of railroading Canada now has over 42,000 miles of railroad and in railway mileage per capita is second only to Australia among the nations of the world.

Construction of Canada's first railroad venture began in June, 1853, one hundred years ago. This line, known as the Champlain and St. Lawrence Railway, was only 16 miles long. It connected St. Johns and L'apalachee, Quebec, and was in reality a portage railroad, the original purpose being to shorten the journey between Montreal and New York. From St. Johns transportation was effected by boat through the Richelieu River to Lake Champlain and then along the Hudson River. The railroad was opened for traffic one year later, and the motive power in the first year of its operation was horses. In the following year, 1857, locomotives were introduced.

Canada's railway era proper began in 1851 with the inauguration of the Grand Trunk System and several subsidiary lines throughout Ontario and Quebec.

At the time of Confederation, 1867, the railway mileage in Canada was 2,278. The next and most important step in railway development in Canada was the building of the Canadian Pacific Railway, completed in 1885. The completion of this trans-continental line was one of the most significant events in Canadian history. It linked the east and west with direct and rapid communication and made the Dominion for the first time a real, united, economic unit. Rapid settlement in the areas tributary to the first trans-continental railway provided abundant and lucrative traffic for the road, and this led to the construction of two more trans-continental lines. With the coming of the war the hopes of the builders of these lines were not realized, and they were eventually acquired by what is known to-day as the Canadian National Railways, which, operating 14,000 miles of line, is the largest system on the American continent.

From the humble beginning of a century ago with only 16 miles of track, Canada's railroads have led the advance of settlement throughout the length and breadth of the Dominion and have grown into a tremendous extension of lines spread over the country like a web, with telegraph and express services, chains of modern hotels, and fleets of passenger and freight vessels linking Canada with all parts of the world.

Making Map Of Mars

Famous Astronomer's Work Being Completed By His Widow

The work of making a map of Mars, begun more than 50 years ago by the famous astronomer, Camille Flammarion, is being completed by his widow.

Madame Gabrielle Flammarion, who was the second wife of "the poet of the skies," works 15 hours a day to complete her late husband's life work. The observatory in which she works is in a garden where lie buried the bodies of her husband and their first wife.

Every night, when conditions permit, Madame Flammarion focuses her powerful telescope on the red planet, studying all its phases and taking innumerable photographs. When atmospheric conditions are bad, she works at her charts of the planet, filling in the unknown spaces. It is said that she knows the "canals" of Mars better than she knows the streets of Juvisy, the Paris suburb where she lives.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

JULY 21

DAVID (THE GREAT-HEARTED)

Gospel text: Not looking each of you to his own things but each of you to the things of others. Philippians 2:4.

Lesson: I. Samuel 26:5-12; II. Samuel 1:23-27, 23:14-17.

Devotional reading: John 17:1-10.

Explanations And Comments:

David Spares Saul's Life, I. Samuel 26:5-12. David himself reconnoitered the place where Saul was reported encamped, and found his asseep up by his followers and a party of bandits, including women. He returned to his own men and asked, "Who will go down with me to Saul to the camp?"

Abigail, the son of David's sister, Gittel, was with him when he found the king still sleeping within the barricade of wagons, with his spear, the symbol of royalty, thrust through his head. "God has given you this kingdom," said Abigail, "but God will not give it to you unless you let my husband go." She begged permission to kill Saul with her own sword. But David forbade, "Art thou not my handmaiden against Jehovah? Against his enemies?" he asked. There was a sacredness attached to Saul's office, and though David could not honor the man, he could honor the king.

With a groan, "What art thou?" he asked. "I am thy servant, 'an abnerite,' a son of Jonathan, the God who carryed you out of your death?"

Saul should meet his death as God willed, not as David, willed; Saul would die at the hands of a murderer.

David sent his men in to see the king and said, "I have sinned."

SYNOPSIS

Nancy Nelson is a sub-dub, a gay, irresponsible girl of nineteen, with a career beyond the choice of her costume for her coming-out party. Suddenly, in the market crash, her indulgent father loses all he has, and his wife, too, is forced to give up the security of a simpler method of living. At this juncture a letter is received from an eccentric relative in Colorado, who offers the girl a home on what seems to be impossible conditions.

After much consideration Cousin Columbine's offer is accepted, and Nancy and Jack arrive at Pine Ridge. They find that at the local station by Columbine Nelson, who at first introduces Mark and Matthew Adams, two neighbors of Aunt Columbine, and the party set out for Pine Ridge. The local scenes do not bode well for Nancy and Jack because of its discredited appearance and general look of poverty. Nancy and Jack are shown to the rooms they are to occupy, and both the young people are shocked by the surroundings hateful and contrasting the present quarters with their luxurious home in Boston, wonder if they can endure the change for any length of time. Columbine tells them why she wrote the letter to them, and relates some of her early experiences at Pine Ridge of hostile Indians and forest fires, of her father's search for gold, and of her mother's splendid birth, but frail body, which could not endure the strain of pioneer life.

No Go On With The Story

There followed a silence until Cousin Columbine exclaimed: "Dear me! Here I am dwelling on the past like an old woman; when what I started out to tell you was what I wrote that idiotic letter. You see, my mother instilled into me the knowledge that we came of gentle people—finer people, perhaps, than some of our good neighbors. She was an orphan, with no near relatives of her own; but she was very proud of the Nelson connections, and always kept up to certain standards. If we lived in a cabin with a dirt floor, at least, there were spotless curtains at the windows, and we ate off a white cloth—a clean one too! I think her dream was to send me East for an education; and long as they lived she corresponded with Father's parents, something he might have neglected to do himself. Later she wrote down the names of the younger members of his family, among them your Grandfather Nelson's, Father's half-brother, telling me that if I were left alone and needed help, I was to appeal to them."

"Did you ever have to?" queried Nancy.

The old lady shook her head. "But I kept in touch with them, as Mother would have wished. Many have died, of course; for Father was so much older than his brothers—that he was almost of another generation."

"It must seem strange never to have seen any of your own people," commented Jack.

"Not only strange," said Cousin Columbine, "but sad, in a way. It was that sadness which caused me to make a resolution to see some one belonging to me—some one of my own blood, before I died."

"But why didn't you go East for a visit?" questioned the boy, forgetting the consternation he had felt at this idea when, weeks before, Aunt Louise had read aloud the letter from their distant relative.

"Because," responded the astute old lady, "I was not sure of a welcome! I realized that I was nothing to my Eastern cousins but a bit of family history—a queer old woman, perhaps, who was born in a covered wagon, and whose life had been lived in a little Colorado town. Besides, I dreamed to away from home temporarily. My roots go deep, like the roots of an old tree that has never been transplanted. I admit I toyed with the idea; but gave it up; for the next thing was to get some of you to come to me."

She paused, and Jack said, smiling: "But how did you happen to pick out Nancy?"

"I could hardly expect the older members of the family to drop their work and come at the whim of a cousin whom they had never seen, could I? Besides, I had a young son for some one young. But I've read about these modern girls, Nancy, and was just a bit afraid. Suppose, I asked myself, suppose I get her out here and find she is one of those—those fappers?"

Both young people gave way to laughter, the word sounded so strange on the old lady's lips.

"Do you see now?" asked Cousin Columbine, "why I wrote that letter?"

"You mean," said Jack with sudden inspiration, "that no fapper would have accepted your invitation?"

"That's it, exactly. No girl whose sole pursuit was pleasure and society, would have been willing to put up with such a situation. But a girl like Nancy, would, I was sure, be glad to help out a poor old lonely cousin. So I made the job as unattractive as I could. It's true that Aurora doesn't do everything my way; and that often I'm desperate for someone to take a stitch for me, since I loathe the very sight of a needle, and always did. Oh, there was enough truth in that letter so it didn't lie heavily on my conscience! And when I read it over I said to myself: 'Columbine, Nelson, no one but a good, sensible, old-fashioned girl would consider this proposition for a minute; and you don't want the other kind.' So I mailed it."

The letter was silent for a moment, Nancy's cheeks flamed, so nicely from her close proximity to an airtight stove. What would Cousin Columbine think if she knew how impossible that proposition seemed to her—that nothing in the world save Dad's financial losses would have made her give it a second thought—that she wouldn't have considered it even if Jack hadn't thought out this scheme and put it through while she fought (or wanted to) for the last ditch? Nancy knew she was sailing under false colors, and didn't like it. She even avoided meeting her brother's eyes as she responded: "I'm afraid you'll be awfully disappointed in me just the same."

"No," asserted Miss Columbine briskly: "I either like a person at first sight, or I don't like them. Been that way always. I'll admit you look rather ornamental; but that's nothing to you if there are brains in that pretty head of yours, and I don't doubt that, you being a Nelson. As for your brother, his brains were evident in the letter he sent me. Back in my father's day he would have been a pioneer!"

Nancy laughed. "I can't see Jack driving a covered wagon, Cousin Columbine!"

"You don't have to in these days of automobiles. But he's got the spirit, and that's counts, my dear."

Jack flushed now, not being as sure as Cousin Columbine that he possessed the courage of his forefathers.

"When do I go to work?" he asked, in an effort to change the conversation.

The old lady hesitated, and then said: "Here's the second confession: When I sent that telegram I had a job for you on the McKenzie ranch over Divide way; but the next day Mrs. McKenzie telephoned that her nephew from Boulder wanted the place after all. Don't look distressed, Jack. You'll have a job before the week is up. I hoped the Adams would have something for you to do, but there are so many boys in the family they seldom hire outsiders."

Mrs. J. H. Boulton is spending several weeks holiday at Vancouver.

Mrs. J. Wilson, Sixth street, spent a few days holiday in Lethbridge.

New corn and new flowers each year remind us of the inexhaustible resources of the Infinite when it comes to food beauty and care.

Lethbridge Exhibition and Jubilee Anniversary opens on Monday for three days. It will be the occasion also for an old-timers reunion.

Tommy Flynn, 13 years, was thrown from his pony this morning when he was returning from the sports at Beaver mines. The accident happened in Blairmore, and his leg was broken beneath the knee. Dr. Stewart was notified, who brought him to Coleman hospital.

It has been rumored that G. E. Cruickshank's name has been suggested as a Stevens candidate for the Federal parliament, for the Macleod constituency. F. O. McKenna of Pincher Creek is the Liberal candidate and Mr. Mathewson of High River is the Conservative. The rumor so far is purely gossip and was picked up on the street.

"Sooky," pet Boston pup of Mrs. Pattinson's, disappeared last Friday. Persistent searching and enquiries failed to reveal his whereabouts. On Tuesday afternoon at Mr. Hopkins' house, near the Pattinson home, the feeble whine of a dog was heard, and it was discovered he had fallen into an excavation which had not been used. His four days solitude and starvation were quickly relieved, and "Sooky" was as joyful as his owners over being found.

THE SALVATION ARMY HOLD ANNUAL PICNIC

The picnic grounds beside the glassy waters of the Crows Nest Lake, towered on all sides by the great mountains of the Park, marked the picturesque spot where the S. A. Young People and their parents spent a most enjoyable day on Monday last.

The shade of the beautiful green trees on the lake shore provided a restful place from the heat of the sun. The young people were kept happy by swimming, racing, games and novelty competitions much to the amusement of the onlookers. It seemed that time to go home came altogether too soon.

We wish to take this opportunity of thanking the business men and friends who so readily helped to make the picnic for the kiddies, such a great success.

YOU BUY ROADS, TOO!

The accompanying chart shows how the price of gasoline to the retailer has decreased and the gasoline tax has increased since 1924. In 1924 the average price to the retailer of all gasoline sold in Canada was 26 cents per gallon. Since 1924, the price has fallen almost continuously until in 1933 and 1934 it stood at the unprecedented low of 18.8 cents—a decrease of 29 per cent. But as the price of gasoline fell, the tax on gasoline rose. The data for this graph are based on figures published by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

WHEN you buy gasoline, you also buy roads over which to drive your car.

Approximately one-fifth to one-third of the price you pay goes directly to your Provincial Government in road tax.

Twelve years ago there was no gasoline tax. Today the tax ranges from six to eight cents per gallon. And yet the cost of gasoline to you is no more because during those twelve years the price of gasoline has been steadily reduced.

Imperial Oil played a leading part in the developments that made lower prices possible. But lower prices were not achieved at the expense of labor. Imperial Oil employees have always been well paid. They work under ideal conditions. They have sickness and death benefits and pensions plans to protect them and their dependents. Five thousand of them are part owners of the Company. They are given every incentive to work efficiently and happily. The result has been better gasoline at lower and lower prices.
